Domestic Market View

Markets to extend somberness reacting to trade deficit data

The Indian markets continued their slide and lost over a quarter percent in the last session, traders were concerned with likely fiscal slippages on rising crude prices and upward pressure on both consumer and wholesale inflation. Today, the start is likely to remain weak and the sluggishness will extend amid negative global cues. On the domestic front traders will be concerned with trade deficit widening to its highest in nearly three years in October, as export growth contracted for the first time after more than a year. The trade deficit widened to $14.02 billion last month from $8.98 billion in September. Merchandise exports for October fell 1.12 percent from a year earlier to $23.1 billion, dropping for the first time since August 2016. There will be buzz in the market with report that government could be looking to come out with detailed anti-profiteering guidelines. The broad idea is to prescribe a methodology to ascertain whether companies are passing on GST reductions and benefits derived from input tax credits to consumers. The realty sector stocks will see some action with industry body Assocham stating that if the real estate sector is brought within the ambit of GST, it should be along with the stamp duty and moderate rate, and should not add to the cost of housing and construction. There will be lots of important earnings announcements to keep the markets buzzing.

Domestic Market Overview

Markets end lower on rise in inflation; Nifty slips below 10,200 mark

Indian equity benchmarks ended the lackluster day of trade in red terrain on Tuesday with frontline gauges breaching their crucial 33,000 (Sensex) and 10,200 (Sensex) levels, as traders remained concerned with retail inflation accelerating more than expected in October. Inflation quickened to 3.58 percent in the month, the fastest pace in seven months, from 3.28 percent increase in September. Consumer inflation rise was mainly due to an increase in prices of consumer food items. The inflation data showed that the Consumer Food Price Index (CFPI) - an indicator for food prices - also rose to 1.90% in October from 1.25% in September. Traders also remained cautious with rising crude prices and tax relief on some items under the Goods and Services Tax (GST) which is expected to threaten the government's fiscal targets on back of possible dip in revenues. Giving hint of further rationalization of GST rates, Finance Minister Arun Jaitley has said that there is scope for further rationalization of GST rates and revenue buoyancy will decide the course of rationalization. The rising crude will also prevent the Reserve Bank of India from cutting interest rates any further.

Markets tried to recoup their losses in second half of trade but selling in dying hour of trade dragged markets near intraday lows, as sentiments turned down-beat after India's inflation on wholesale level picked up in the month of October due to increase in prices of food and fuel products. According to the latest data released by the government, the wholesale price inflation (WPI) climbed to 3.59% in October 2017 from 2.60% in September 2017 and 1.27% during the corresponding month of the previous year. Build up inflation rate in the financial year so far was 2.03% compared to a build up rate of 3.53% in the corresponding period of the previous year. Investors failed to get any sense of relief with a private report that business confidence in the country during the ongoing quarter has improved on account of government measures, macroeconomic boost and festive season demand, among others. The index stood at 76.7 during October-December of 2017, an increase of 6.4% from the preceding three months. The index, however, fell 4.1% against the corresponding three months a year ago.

Global Market Overview

Asian markets end mostly in red on Tuesday

Asian equity markets ended mostly lower on Tuesday as Chinese economic data disappointed and uncertainty lingered over US tax policy. Chinese shares ended lower after a slew of data showed the world's second-largest economy cooled further last month. China's industrial production and retail sales growth decelerated in October and property investment also cooled, as measures taken to curb excessive debt and factory pollution weighed on activity, data from the National Bureau of Statistic showed. Industrial output grew 6.2 percent year-on-year in October, down from the 6.6 percent expansion seen in September. Retail sales growth eased to 10 percent from 10.3 percent in the month, while fixed asset investment climbed 7.3 percent compared to 7.5 percent rise seen for the nine months ended September. Bank lending and property investment growth figures also disappointed investors. Meanwhile, Japanese shares closed on a flat note, with the benchmark Nikkei finishing marginally lower at 22,380.01.

US markets closed lower on Tuesday

The US markets closed lower on Tuesday, with Wall Street slumping in the face of uncertainty around efforts to overhaul tax policy and a downturn in crude-oil futures. The Dow and S&P 500 finished in negative territory for three out of the past four trading sessions, suggesting that a run to records may be cooling somewhat, as investors fret about tax reform and equity valuations. Federal Reserve Chairwoman Janet Yellen admitted that the range of different voices on the central bank's policy-setting committee can be confusing to the public, calling it one of the institution's biggest challenges. The Fed chairwoman said the policy-setting committee has experimented with ways to streamline external communications. One way was attempting to produce a consensus view, having recognized that it would offer greater guidance to the public if instead of displaying at full strength 19 different views on the outlook and appropriate policy. The Fed meets for its next policy-setting meeting on December 12-13 and is widely expected to raise its benchmark interest rate. According to the CME FedWatch Tool, the market is pricing in a 91.2% probability of a 25 basis point rate hike.
